POSTKARTE.

Loch Etive is an arm of the sea which flows into the northern extremity of the Firth of Lorne. Lofty and precipitous peaks border its shores, chief among which are Ben Cruachan (3,689 feet), Ben Starav (3,541 feet), and Stob Ghavar (3,655 feet). At the northern extremity is the beautiful Glen Etive, one of the most famous beauty spots in the Western Highlands.
